Youth, 16, Fatally Hurt In Auto Crash

SENIOR HIGH PUPIL SUFFERS BROKEN NECK

Harvey A. Solomon, Jr., Dies In Ashland Hospital, Second Boy Seriously Injured.

Harvey A. Solomon, jr., 16-year-old Mansfield Senior high school junior, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon and his companion, John E. Wheatley, 16, a classmate, was seriously injured when their car collided with a truck on U. S. Route 30 east of Hayesville.

Young Solomon was the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Solomon, 136 Poplar street. He died 45 minutes after the accident in Ashland Samaritan hospital.

The Solomon youth was the second Senior high school pupil to die in accidents in the past two weeks. Robert Guthrie, 17, a senior, was drowned Nov. 30 in the Scioto river, north of Columbus while on a hunting trip.

The Ashland county coroner's report showed the Solomon youth died of a skull fracture and broken neck.

Wheatley was reported in "fair" condition at the Ashland hospital today after suffering a possible skull fracture and fracture of the vertebrae and shoulder. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Wheatley, McElroy road.

Skids on Curve.

State highway patrolmen said the crash occurred at 2:15 p. m. on a sharp curve, two-tenths of a mile east of Hayesville. Witnesses said the speedy roadster, driven by the Wheatley youth and owned by his father, appeared to skid into the path of an empty dump truck driven by Walter Stumbaugh, 40, of Jeromesville, who escaped injury. A passenger in the truck, Bernard Smith also of Jeromesville, was treated for minor injuries in Hayesville.

Glenn G. Rohleder, Senior high principal, said both boys left school, unexcused, at noon yesterday.

"Such tragedies as this only magnify the constant danger of pupils driving to school and having the daily use of a car," Rohleder said. "We frown on the practice of parents allowing children to drive to school when there are other means of transportation."

Rohleder added that many of the Senior high pupils are in the habit of "taking rides" after school hours to surrounding towns.

Loudonville Native.

The Solomon youth was born June 18, 1930, at Loudonville, and was confirmed March 17, 1940, at St. Luke's Lutheran church of Mansfield where he attended Sunday school regularly.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by one sister, Norma Rose Solomon, and one brother, David Russell, at home; his maternal and paternal grandmothers, Mrs. Effie Russell and Mrs. Margaret Solomon, both of Loudonville.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday at 1 p. m. at the Jones Memorial by Dr. Herbert S. Garnes, pastor of St. Luke's church. Burial will be in Loudonville cemetery.

REORGANIZATION PLAN DISCLOSED BY AIR SERVICE

Proposal Submitted By Mail to Harrington Creditors.

A plan for the reorganization of Harrington Air Service, Inc., and Harrington Aviation, Inc, was submitted by mail to creditors today by James H. Hoffman, chairman of the Creditors Committee.

Hoffman said another plan for reorganization of Harrington Manufacturing company was expected to be formulated and presented to creditors in about 10 days. The three firms are situated at the site of the old city airport.

Several weeks ago, a creditors committee was organized to keep the three firms in operation until they could be reorganized.

The plan, as submitted today, calls for the elimination of all preferred stock in Harrington Air Service. One class of common stock would be issued, 10 per cent going to present holders of common and preferred stock and the other 90 per cent going to creditors of all classes in payment of claims.

* * *

List Liabilities.

For Harrington Aviation, the plan calls for the spending of $25,000 in cash to purchase pro rata from all creditors stock shares at a price equal to 50 per cent of the claim value represented by the shares.

Total liabilities of Harrington Air Service were listed at approximately $389,000. Of this amount $124,926 was listed as due trade creditors.

It is proposed that R. B. Black, president of Harrington Air Service, continue to serve without compensation until the reorganization is effected and that "a new chief executive officer be obtained for the re-organized company," and the board of directors strengthened.

Hoffman's letter stated that if the reorganization plan is accepted by a majority of the directors it would then be submitted for court approval.

A petition in involuntary bankruptcy had been filed against Harrington Air Service in federal court at Cleveland by four out-of-town creditors Nov. 9. Other suits are pending in Richland county common pleas court for adjustment of an architect's fee and for possession of two hangars.

MERCURY DIPS BELOW FREEZING

The thermometer took an unexpected dip below freezing early today, breaking a four-day spell of unusually moderate weather.

The weatherman—sticking out his neck again—predicted increasing cloudiness and a little warmer tonight, with occasional rain tomorrow.

Temperatures ranged nearly 30 degrees between yesterday's high of 57 at Hayesville to today's low of 28.

EMPIRE STEEL DECLARES $1 CASH DIVIDEND

Payment to Stockholders First Ordered Since 1933 Reorganization.

Joseph B. Montgomery, president and chairman of the board of Empire Steel corporation, announced today that the board of directors had declared a $1 a share dividend on the company's stock.

This marks the first cash dividend received by the shareholders since the reorganization of the company in 1933. A 50 percent dividend was paid on August 4, 1945.

Montgomery said the dividend will be distributed to shareholders on Dec. 26, of stock record date Dec. 16.

Maximum Operation.

He said operations for the current year had been "at maximum capacity even though the recent coal strike with the exception of a shutdown during February due to labor difficulty, and that this operation had returned to the company a profitable experience for the year.

During the past five years, when profits had been on a better level, the company had been able to retire a substantial portion of its [illegible] as well as spend considerable [illegible] maintenance of the property and new improvements which will eventually benefit the company's operations, he added.

* * *

Lauds Employes.

Montgomery gave credit for the reasonable success which the company has been experiencing "to a great degree to the cooperation of the company's employes" explaining that in some departments production exceeds the wartime level.

The schedule of working hours for employes has not been decreased, he added, with the result that earnings per hour for Empire employes is equal to the average of the entire steel industry.

REST OF YULE LIGHTS READY

Because of a delay in installing power circuits, only a portion of the Christmas lights in Central park were turned on last night, Ohio Public Service company officials said today.

The service department promised, however, that all lines would be connected today, and more than 3,000 red and green bulbs would transform the park into a gay holiday atmosphere.

The decorations are sponsored by the Retail Merchants' association. Installation of the lights this year was delayed nearly three weeks because of the coal strike.

The yule decorations are concentrated in the Central park area.

A LITTLE BOY'S LETTER MAKES SANTA HAPPY

By AL PREYER

"Ho, ho, ho, Santa Claus speaking," spoke a deep, jolly voice at the other end of the line. Santa's twinkling eyes and happy smile could be clearly visualized in the sound of his merry voice.

"Ho, ho, ho, you newspaper men—always calling me up just when I'm busiest trying to get out my last batch of Christmas surprises for good little boys and girls," Santa said. "Just a second until I turn on the oven to bake a batch of cookies."

Finally he was on the line again. "Mansfield? Mansfield? Just a minute," he said in answer to a query as to what letters he had received from Mansfield boys and girls. The pages of his big record book could be heard going 'flip-flap.'

"I've got too many letters from the Mansfield children to be able to read them all to you," he commented.

"The most wonderful thing about them, though, is that most all of the children have stopped asking old Santa for tin soldiers, toy tanks and guns, and are getting back to the things that it always makes me happy to bring—skates and sleds and dolls, paints and paintbooks and other honest-to-goodness 'fun' toys.

"But there's one letter I must tell you about," Santa said. "It's from a Mansfield boy and it's right at the top of my list as it is the true Christmas spirit. Here it is:

'Dear Santa Claus: Bring me a fire truck. Sister and I got a victrola and radio combination. So Santa, please don't give us so much, and help the poor children in foreign lands. My house number is 320 Third avenue.

(Signed)

'Junior Didicher'."

That letter really choked Santa up as he read it. "How I wish all the kiddies felt that way," he sighed.

AIR FORCE AIMS AT SUPERSONIC SPEED

Rocket Plane 'Loafs' At 550 In First Test

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—A tiny plane with which the Army Air Forces and Bell Aircraft corporation, its maker, expect to delve into the uncharted realm of supersonic speed, has successfully completed its first tests.

The XS-1, with 23-year-old Pilot Chalmers (Slick) Goodlin, New Alexandria, Pa., at the controls, was cut loose from the belly of a B-29 bomber over Muroc army air base Monday. Seconds after America's first rocket-propelled plane dropped away from the big bomber, Goodlin, turned on the power, and the craft darted away with a momentum which the former navy pilot compared to the thrust from a catapult aboard a carrier.

The plane is designed to fly at 1,700 miles an hour, but Goodlin made no attempt to step it up that high. He loafed along at a mere 550, using first one cylinder, then two, and finally—for only a few seconds—all four.

The plane was cut loose at 25,000 feet. Goodlin climbed under his own power to 35,000, meantime diving, banking and climbing. He flew for 19 minutes, not quite seven under power, and made a perfect landing with his fuelless engine idle.

* * *

THE PLANE'S POWER IS measured in terms of thrust, rather than horsepower. But R. M. Stanley, Eric, Okla., Bell's chief engineer and designer of the plane, said by the only available means of comparison, the engine could be said to develop 30,000 horsepower. It burns ethyl alcohol, oxidized by liquid oxygen.

The engine is unbelievably small to generate such a tremendous thrust. Without fuel it weighs only 210 pounds, and its overall length is 56 inches. The plane itself is smaller than the average fighter, measuring 31 feet from tail to tip, with a wing span of only 28 feet.

7 TO TESTIFY AGAINST BILBO

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The senate war investigating committee today announced an opening list of seven war department witnesses to testify on charges that Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo (D) Miss., received over $30,00 from war contractors in return for "influence" in Washington.

At least 20 other witnesses from Mississippi, it was understood, will be brought to Washington for subcommittee hearings opening tomorrow. The allegations date back to 1941 and 1942.

Bilbo, undismayed by four days of senate campaign investigating committee hearings in Jackson, Miss., last week, announced that he will be on hand for the war contract inquiry.

Four of the army witnesses were identified by Sen. Mead (D) N. Y., subcommittee chairman, as officers who had served in Mississippi and Alabama. The other three, headed by Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Robbins, former assistant chief of army engineers, were on duty in Washington.

The committee's first step, it is believed, will be to trace the chain of events involved in the awarding of an eleven and a half million dollar contract for construction of Keesler Field, Biloxi, Miss., in June, 1941.

B-25 BOMBER FALLS IN FIELD AND EXPLODES

Farmhouse Shaken By Blast as Debris Scatters Over Wide Area.

An officer assigned to the AAF depot in Shelby was among the four army fliers killed yesterday in a wheat field near Circleville.

Lt. Col. S. H. Raymond, commanding officer of the 831st AAF Specialized depot, said the victim was Lt. Ralph H. Berkes, 24, of Tarentum, Pa.

Lt. Berkes had been assigned to the depot as an air inspector since last March. He was a veteran of combat service in the European theater.

Pieces Scatter.

Two officers and an enlisted man died in the crash, to which there were no witnesses. The plane was from the Lockbourne Army Air base in Columbus, and was on a routine training flight.

Parts of the plane were scattered over a 25-acre field. A nearby farmhouse was shaken by the explosion. The Lockbourne base reported there was no indication of trouble and the plane had been in contact with the control tower a short time before the crash.

Lt. Berkes lived at 12 High School avenue in Shelby. Funeral arrangements have not been completed, but services will be held in Tarentum.

Very Little Right About This Fellow

FOSTORIA —(UP)— One thing led to another here today for Ignacio A. Rodique, 24, of Findlay, because he failed to drive carefully.

When patrolmen saw Ignacio driving in an unsafe and reckless manner they stopped him and found he didn't have a driver's license. Then he admitted that he failed to get the owner's consent before driving the car out of a parking lot.

Police searched the car and found a rifle—searched Ignacio and found a long knife known in police circles as a "pig sticker."

On Ignacio's coat lapel was a discharge button, but he admitted he had neved been in the service.

With further questioning, he admitted that the draft card he carried had been issued to another man.

Price Boosts Unnecessary, Say Analysts

Swollen Corporate Profits In 1946 Justify Higher Earnings for Workers, Report Claims.

By CHARLES H. HERROLD

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The CIO threw into its wage drive today an independent analysis claiming that "lush" 1946 corporate profits of $25,000,000,000 justified immediate 25 per cent wage increases to workers—without new price increases.

The report, entitled "A National Wage Policy for 1947," was prepared by Robert R. Nathan Associates at the request of the CIO. Nathan is a former deputy director of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion.

Nathan's report said the present "imbalance between wages and profits is unsound" and warned that "unless there is an immediate increase in wages or a sharp drop in prices, we are flirting with collapse."

But there is no evidence that business will cut prices before a depression, he added, and labor therefore should not forego needed wage increases at this time. He said corporate business as a whole could grant 25 per cent raises without having to boost prices.

Ammunition for Union.

A CIO source said CIO unions would use the report as ammunition in their campaign to win "substantial" 1947 wage increases in the steel, automobile, electrical, rubber and other important industries.

Nathan headed the OWMR staff which in October of 1945 compiled a report stating that industry could absorb a 24 per cent wage increase and still make record profits.

His new report emphasized two main points: (1) workers have suffered a substantial loss in take-home-pay despite 1946 wage increases, and (2) industry now is able to absorb substantial new wage increases.

Nathan said the weekly take-home pay of automobile workers declined from $59 42 to $52.12 between January 1945 and Oct. 1946, and steel workers' earnings were down from $55.04 to $50.28.

The only offsetting development, he said, was that lower-paid workers received relatively large wage increases. Thus, the weekly take-home pay for general retail merchandise store workers rose from $22 31 to $28.57 between January 1945 and October 1946. Lumber workers' earnings went up from $33.72 to $38.79 and canning workers from $31.69 to $41 54.

Nathan asserted that at full employment, the present price and wage structure of American industry "yields a level of corporate profits before taxes as high as at the lushest period of war prosperity."

Prices Linked To Wages, Says Wilson

CHICAGO —(INS)— C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors corporation warned today that further increases in wages in the automobile industry should be accompanied by corresponding additional increases in automobile prices.

He asserted at a news conference, however, that such a course would be "inflation" and that further increases in wages and prices might be disastrous, leading to a "boom and bust" period.

MIDDLETOWN —(AP) —Four persons were injured, one critically, yesterday when a boiler exploded.

WAR POWERS STILL NEEDED

Republican Investigator Says Emergency Laws Cannot Be Quickly Discarded.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Victory-flushed Republicans were told today that it will be months and perhaps years before congress can safely repeal all of the president's emergency war powers.

Promises of swift action by the 80th congress faded in the wake of an adverse recommendation by Rep. Lewis (R) Ohio, chairman of a special Republican committee investigating repeal.

Lewis advised Rep. Martin (R) Mass., next speaker of the house, that it was "neither wise nor desirable" to pass a resolution declaring the war formally ended and the emergency proclaimed by the late President Roosevelt ended. Lewis warned Martin that "far-reaching consequences would follow the passage of such a resolution."

Warns Against Haste.

He urged instead that the house judiciary committee be requested to "most carefully weigh and consider" repeal of the president's emergency powers. As for immediate action, Lewis advised Martin that the only wartime statutes that could be safely repealed now were those suggested by the Truman administration and approved by the house last July 27, five days before congress adjourned. The senate did not have time to act.

They comprise 46 war-enacted statutes which the judiciary committee reported to the house were "no longer needed." They are largely of a minor nature.

Lewis' recommendation was in sharp contrast to the jubilant statement issued after the election by "The Republican News," official organ of the Republican party. It stated in its December issue that "the new congress is likely to pass a resolution declaring World War II hostilities ended."

The Lewis recommendation was more in line with the statement issued Nov. 14 by the house Republican steering committee. The committee agreed that governmental controls "shall be eliminated as rapidly as practicable, the president's war powers terminated as fast as consistent with wisdom, and the powers belonging under the constitution to the states returned to them."

PROMPT YULE MAILING URGED

In announcing a special post office holiday schedule for Saturday, Acting Postmaster Curtis L. Ford again urged that Mansfielders mail their Christmas parcels early in order to assure delivery before Christmas.

Hours to be in effect at the post office windows Saturday are as follows: general delivery and stamps and parcel post 7 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.; registry, 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.; money order and postal savings 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Ford said that other changes which might be made necessary by the holiday rush will be announced later.

"While the Christmas rush was in full swing at this time last year, it seems to be slow in getting started this year," Ford remarked. "I urge people to mail now in order to assure delivery before Christmas. It is obvious that postal and transportation facilities will be overloaded if everyone waits until the last few days to do their mailing."

Johnson, Runyon Bow To Death's Summons

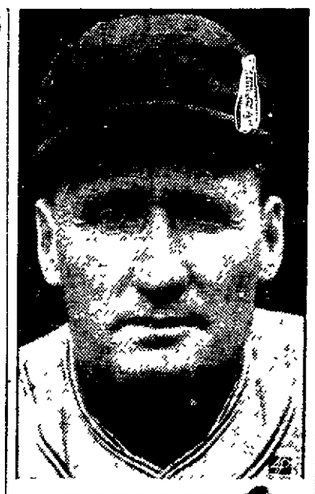
'Big Train' Leaves Mark in Baseball Hall of Fame.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Two generations of baseball fans were saddened today by the passing of Walter Johnson, 59, the fireball thrower who virtually rewrote the pitching record book during his 21 years with the Washington Senators.

Known as "The Big Train" wherever baseball was played or talked about and a member of the game's official Hall of Fame, the kindly onetime Kansas farm boy died just before midnight at Georgetown hospital.

For eight months his life had been dimming from a brain tumor which doctors dared not try to relieve by surgery.

In Washington, where he spent his entire big league pitching career, Johnson was almost as celebrated as presidents, cabinet members and supreme court justices. During the time he lay dying even schoolboys unborn when he was in his prime called the hospital to ask how he was doing.



WALTER JOHNSON

Clark Griffith, 76-year-old president of the Senators, summed it up for the lanky Johnson's admirers today when he said:

"He was the greatest pitcher of all time."

Johnson, whose boyhood was spent on a farm near Humboldt, Kas., came to the Senators in 1907 from an independent team at Weiser, Idaho.

Playing with a team of which the wags said "First in peace, first in war and last in the American league," the six foot one, 200-pounder with the buggy whip right arm won 413 games and lost 280.

At one time or another he held just about all the modern pitching records and some still stand.

During more than two decades in Senators' livery, he struck out 3,497 batters, pitched 803 games, chalked up 113 shutouts, turned in one stretch of 56 scoreless innings, fanned six batters in a row, struck out more than 200 men in seven consecutive seasons.

Broadway's Famous Writer Comes To Final Chapter.

NEW YORK —(UP)— Damon Runyon, the Broadway story teller, died last night in Memorial hospital after asking the guys and dolls on the big stem to see that there was no fuss over his passing.

Friends said there would be no funeral services, that Runyon's body, at his request, would be cremated at an undisclosed time. He had asked that his ashes be strewn over Manhattan island by his friend, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker.

Runyon was 62. His physicians announced that he died of cancer. He had been unable to talk since a throat operation in 1944, but swapped wisecracks and opinions with his associates on a pad of paper. He entered the hospital Friday and had been in a coma for 24 hours when he died at 7:06 p. m.

DAMON RUNYON

Runyon, bespectacled, given to snap-brimmed hats and flashy clothes, was famous as a short-story writer, was a syndicated columnist, but considered himself primarily a reporter.

His literary style was salted with Broadway slang. His success was in his characters, Harry the Horse, Louie the Lug, Joe and Ethel Twerp, Regret the Horse-Player, Apple Annie, and Little Miss Marker. It was the film portrayal of the latter that lifted Shirley Temple to stardom.

Runyon was as much a part of the New York scene as his creations. Consuming quarts of coffee—he was a teetotaler—he would sit for long hours in Lindy's Broadway restaurant, playing host to a long procession of characters, who later found themselves part of a Runyon short story.

At his bedside when he died were his son, Damon, jr., his business agent, Paul Small, and Eddie Walker, a fight manager. Runyon also was survived by a daughter, Mary. His first wife, Ellie Regan, a Denver newspaper woman, died in 1931, and his second wife, Patrice Del Gridier, a dancer, whom he married in 1932, obtained a divorce last year.

Two teen-age boys were convicted of traffic violations and a 39-year-old man was sentenced for contributing to the delinquency of small boys in juvenile court sessions yesterday.

McQuillin also was ordered to be in his home at reasonable hours at night.

Joseph Hubert, 39, who resides at the Phoenix hotel, pleaded guilty to contributing to the delinquency of two boys, one 13 and the other 12. He was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennett Cerf

THERE WAS a sad incident one day in the heart of the Ozark mountains A farmer's mother-in-law and his mule engaged in a kicking contest and the mule won.

A tremendous crowd turned out for the funeral, but it was made up almost entirely of men The minister commented, "This old lady must have been mighty popular because so many people will leave their work to come to her funeral"

"They're not here for the funeral," said the surprised farmer. "They're here to buy the mule."

The box office treasurer of a vaudeville theatre in St. Paul sold a ticket for a matinee to a man with one of those faces that haunt you for days after you've seen it. He was startled, therefore, to see that same man come back a couple of minutes later and buy another ticket for the same show. When the character appeared to purchase a third ducat, the treasurer said, "I know it's none of my business, but I suppose you realize that this is the third ticket you have bought for the same show." 'Of course I realize it," said the little man with a sigh, "but when I handed the other tickets to the man at the door he tore them up."

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Scrambled scribblings from the sports samovar. . . . Credit Herb Eisele, until Monday coach at Cleveland Cathedral Latin high school, with the neatest bit of razzle-dazzle of the entire 1946 grid season. . . . For more than a week, much was made of negotiations between Eisele and representatives of the University of Dayton . . . where the balding grid wizard was slated to take over the football reins from Harry Baujan.

It looked like a "natural." . . . Baujan, after 25 years as Dayton grid mentor, was looking to play a less active role. . . . Eisele had played his college football under Baujan. . . . He had been one of Dayton's all-time pigskin greats. . . . Then Eisele completely reversed his field, announcing he had signed to coach at John Carroll.

Another outstanding coach apparently about to pull down a college coaching plum is Ed Kluska of the great Cincinnati Purcell machine. . . . Kluska seems all set to go to Xavier, where Phil Bucklew was recently ousted. . . . In many respects, Kluska's record parallels Eisele's. . . . Where Cathedral Latin had played its final 34 games under Eisele without defeat, Purcell has not been beaten in its last 29 starts.

The Ohio conference talked a lot of sense at its first peacetime meeting since 1941 in Columbus last week-end. . . . The conference reaffirmed the National Collegiate Athletic association amateurism code. . . . But it inserted a proviso that being a professional in one sport need not necessarily bar a player from college competition in others.

Another good sign that wartime restrictions have relaxed is seen in the announcement that the Mansfield relays will be held this year for the first time since 1941. . . . This year's program will be the 16th of a series which began in 1927.

Harry Mehock, Mansfield high school track coach and athletic director, claims his brainchild is the largest high school relay event in the country . . . except for the Penn relays' high school division.

High point in Mansfield relay history was reached in 1939 when 1,500 men representing 110 schools from six states participated. . . . This year's meet on April 19 will have 19 events and prize awards worth $1,500 according to Mehock. Invitations go out next month.

RIDMEN CAN'T MISS BUCKET; SISCO GETS 16

Majors Misses Bus; Boyals Improving.

BELLEVUE — Mansfield Senior high school basketballers dropped out of the ranks of the undefeated here last night.

A pair of youngsters who couldn't miss the hoop were the big stars as Bellevue's classy cage combine took a thrilling 53 to 47 decision over the Tygers. It was Bellevue's fourth straight victory.

Jim Ball and Norm Shelley accounted for 33 of the victors' points. Ball's one-handed jump shot was almost impossible to guard and the veteran forward dumped in nine from the court while Shelley connected for 15 marks.

Ballhandling and passing of the Mansfield outfit showed tremendous improvement over the formdown in defeating Wapakoneta last week. Play of Chuck Sisco, Tommy Bloor and soph Bert Weaver was particularly gratifying.

Sisco finally found the range in the third final stanza and dumped in a total of 16 points. He got 10 in that heat while Bloor made seven 14 tries from the court.

Weaver, playing his first varsity game, went into action in the second period and looked good at the pivot spot. The well-built soph got his chance when veteran Ralph Major missed bus connections in Mansfield and did not make the trip.

If Majors had been in action the result might have been different as the Tygers missed his ball-hawkishness in the first half. The Tygers did not start rebounding until after the intermission, and that proved their undoing.

Bellevue ran up a four-point lead before Ollie Cline stole the ball and dribbled the full length of the court to sink a "bunny" shot with six minutes of the first heat. Bellevue led 8 to 4 at the quarter and 22 to 16 at half-time.

Thanks to three buckets by Bloothe Tygers pared the lead to 30 to 29 as the wild fourth period opened. Thirty-nine points were marked up in the final eighteen minutes with Bellevue holding seven-point lead on two occasions.

Sisco garnered 11 points in the third period and at one time in the final stanza Bellevue connected on six straight shots.

Mansfield made 21 of 68 shots which is good enough to win 99 of a hundred games but last night was the exception.

Bellevue also copped the reserve contest. The Tyger sophs led at the half 11-7, but fell behind 24-16 as the final heat started.

BAPTISTS LEAD CHURCH LEAGUE

Park Avenue Baptist took undisputed possession of first place in the YMCA church league last night on the "Y" court.

First Lutheran and Ontario Community had been tied for the top spot of the loop but both dropped their first decisions. Last quarter rallies enabled Park Avenue to defeat the Lutherans, 28-26, and St. Lukes to take Ontario by an identical score.

In the last encounter, First Presbyterian smothered Mayflower Congregational, 33-14.

Bill Hackett Files Big Damage Suit

COLUMBUS — (INS) — William "Bill" Hackett, All-American guard on Ohio State's 1944 football team, had a $75,000 damage suit on file today against Mrs. Marie A. Dick in connection with an auto collision in 1944.

Hackett contended that Mrs. Dick was driving on the wrong side of the street at the time of the head-on crash. He asserted that injuries resulting from the crash prevented him from playing football in 1945 and since, forcing him to turn down professional offers ranging upward from $8,000 a year.

MADISON, Wis. — (U.P.) — Fred Negus, junior center from Martins Ferry, O., was honored today as the University of Wisconsin's most valuable football player during the past season.

Damon Runyon Had Yen To Manage Ham, Eggers

By BILL CORUM

NEW YORK—(INS)—There are those who will tell you that they knew Damon Runyon, the country's top all-around newspaper man, who died last night. They didn't. Nobody ever knew Damon. Anybody who thinks he did is kidding himself.

It is almost impossible to write truthfully about Runyon the man. He could change his mind between breaths and, with it, his entire character. Or at any rate, that facet of his many-sided character that you might be trying to describe.

A far easier thing to do is to talk about him as a workman. As a writing newspaper man he simply was the best, period, and as many periods after that one as you feel inclined to add.

He could write and he could write anything, so that he could make less gifted reporters, those with a less lively wit and heavier hand, want to pick up their typewriters and throw them out of the press-box. He broke your heart when he sat there with a cigaret in the corner of his mouth, riffling those keys.

Since he came back to Broadway, where he belonged, from Hollywood—and let there be no mistake that Runyon was the true "Mr. Broadway" of our era—I have heard it said over and over that he never wrote better than he was writing in "The Lighter Side."

The word "genius" is a hefty one for a small fellow to try to lift, particularly a contemporary. Yet I don't believe it would be surprising to find Damon's short stories living as long as anything that has been written in our times.

He never quit. His health stopped him. When Ward Greene, of King Features, wrote him not long ago for copy and he was asked if he wanted to reply in a letter that he was too sick to work, he replied:

"Oh, no. I feel a little dizzy today but I'll get 'em out tomorrow."

Nor does all this take cognizance of his lifelong yen to be a boxing promoter and fight manager. Unfortunately, or rather fortunately for the rest of us since it kept him busy writing, he was a terrible judge of fighters. He fed more ham and eggers more good food than he could eat himself, and, believe me, he was no mean trencherman.

He also loved clothes and, particularly shoes of which he wore something like 3½'s. He had Hype Igoe break them in for him when he had an apartment in the Vendome.

He really knew about food and good cooking, and nothing kept him away from it day or night. He knew everybody and yet he was easily the most timid and super-sensitive man I have ever known. He could con folks pretty good even when he didn't like 'em much. But if he truly didn't like 'em, for whatever strange reason he might decide, he was really tough.

Even if he liked you, he loved to give you "the needle," as the saying goes. But part of that was a calculated piece of business. He knew if he could get people angry and talking they'd say things that they might not otherwise say, and his curiosity was insatiable.

Mind you, this is not hearsay. For more than twenty years I knew Damon, travelled with him, slept in the same rooms with him, argued with him and, at times, got grievously annoyed with him. Yet of those left around, I doubt if many knew him more intimately and yet, I must confess, I never thought I really knew him.

Never a Protest From 'Big Train'

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—Southern Association President Billy Evans, who in his 22 years as an American league umpire called many a game pitched by Walter Johnson, said today he never once heard "The Big Train" protest a decision.

"I have been behind the plate in many games in which he set marks the present-day twirlers are still shooting at," Evans said. "Yet in the hundreds of games pitched by Johnson—never once did he offer a single objection on my calling of balls and strikes."

The Blue Jays stopped Rollin Ford, county's leading scorer, with eight points. Ford had averaged 16 points per game until last night. Lexington led by quarters 9-3, 15-11, and 18-14. Dave Worner of Bellville notched 14 points.

Doug Weber, Bob Bierly and Estley Maglott accounted for 36 points for Butler.

Ontario tied Lexington and Bellville for second place in the standings by romping over Shiloh, 43-20. Plymouth defeated Lucas, 42-36, in the other contest.

Bedtime Stories

—By Thornton W. Burgess

CHANGED WORLD

Mother Brown, loking out the window where the feeding shelf for feathered folk was placed, saw Happy Jack Squirrel running about below picking up the few, very few, tiny seeds that had fallen from the shelf where all day long the birds had been coming and going, filling their crops from the bountiful supplies of seeds and chopped nut meats and suet and crumbs spread there for them. That shelf had been so arranged that no Squirrel could climb to it. This was because before it had been so arranged Happy Jack had made a nuisance of himself. He had been supremely selfish, which means as selfish as it was possible to be. Not only had he driven away the birds for whom that food was intended but he had wasted much and carried away some that he didn't need.

So Farmer Brown's boy fixed that shelf so that there was no way for Happy Jack to reach it. "He doesn't need this food. He got his share of a good crop of nuts and acorns in the fall and hid them for use in the winter," said Farmer Brown's boy, and Mother Brown agreed.

But now as she looked down at Happy Jack she was suddenly filled with pity for him. Perhaps she saw the longing and despair in his eyes as he looked up at that shelf of food he couldn't reach. Perhaps she saw him shiver despite that thick coat of gray fur.

"You poor thing," she said. "You look cold and hungry and forlorn. You do so. What you did with all those nuts and acorns you hid away I don't know, but you do. Has someone robbed your storehouse?"

Mother Brown would have told you that she knew all about Squirrels and would have been honest about it. She thought she did. She was like so very many other folks, knowing just enough about a thing to think they know it all. She knew that the Squirrel folk are thrifty folk, that in the fall they harvest nuts and acorns and seeds and put them away for winter food. Because she knew that some have secret storerooms for these winter supplies she supposed all Squirrels have. She didn't know that Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel doesn't believe in storing all his winter supplies in one place or two places lest they be found and he be robbed of all. So in the fall he hides his harvest, a nut here, an acorn there, usually buried just beneath the surface of the earth or hidden under a mat of grass or fallen leaves. Just how he finds them in winter when he needs them, especially when the ground is covered with snow, is his own secret, but find them he does unless, as had happened this time, they are locked away by an icy crust he cannot dig or break through.

Mother Brown opened the window and threw out a crust of bread. Happy Jack seized it. He didn't carry it off to eat up in a tree as he usually does a big piece of food. He began eating it right there, and by the way he ate it Mother Brown knew that he had had nothing to eat since the beginning of the storm.

Just then one of the best friends the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows have came into the kitchen. It was Farmer Brown's boy. He looked over his mother's shoulder. He saw at a glance how greedily Happy Jack was eating that crust. He knew exactly what it meant, for he is wise in the ways of his friends and neighbors in fur and feathers.

"That little fellow was starving. And he probably is as cold as he is hungry. I'm glad he had sense enough to come over here. We'll get him fed up and then he will warm up," said he.

"But hasn't he got a supply of nuts stored away?" asked Mother Brown. She looked puzzled.

"Yes, but not where he can get them while this crust lasts," replied Tommy. "Have we a bone with a little meat clinging to it we can give him?"

"Squirrels don't eat meat!" exclaimed Mother Brown.

"Don't they? You get the bone and watch this one!" cried Tommy as he started for the barn for some corn.

AIRPORT FIRM NAMED IN SUIT

Fourth in a series of suits filed against the Harrington Manufacturing company in municipal court boosted to $2,156 today the damages being asked in that court from the company.

Involuntary bankruptcy proceedings against the Harrington Air Service, Inc., a sister company, have been filed in federal district court at Cleveland for $2,712.

Latest action was filed in municipal court by the McKinley Roofing and Insulation company, Park avenue east, for $990 which the company claims is due for insulating a building at the airport for the manufacturing concern.

Other municipal court suits include those of the Rogers Tool and Die company for $447 for work and services; the Gothard Manufacturing company, Springfield, Ill., $423 for lighting equipment, and Robert West, of Cleveland, $296 which he alleges represents salary and damages owed him.

James R. Harrington, founder and first president of the company, has resigned and the firm has been reorganized. A creditors' committee has been organized to manage the company

The company has answered two municipal court suits, denying West's charges and asking dismissal and denying the tool company's petition, claiming that the tool firm agreed to accept $594 for complete payment of a $1,041 bill.

NEW SUGAR STAMP EFFECTIVE JAN. 1

A new sugar stamp will be made effective Jan. 1, OPA announced today. The stamp will be good for five pounds of sugar and will continue in effect through April 30.

"It is anticipated," the announcement said, "that the second consumer stamp for 1947 will be made good before this first 1947 stamp expires, thus increasing the present consumer ration of five pounds of sugar for each four months."

Meanwhile, stamp No. 51 has been continued valid through Dec. 31. Canning sugar stamps 9 and 10 have also been extended through Dec. 31. These two canning stamps gave an additional 10 pounds for 1946.

Industrial sugar allotments for the first quarter of 1947 will remain unchanged from the last quarter of 1946, OPA announced.

Clarence Bemiller, who arranged for Santa to pay the visit, said there will be music by Eugene Smart and dancing featuring members of the Marguerite Speas dancing studio. It's strictly a party for the "kids" although the parents may come, too, club officials said.

SHELBY OBJECTS TO 3-COUNTY TB HOSPITAL

Commissioner Says Public Put OK on 49-Bed Institution.

As plans went ahead today for a public forum tonight on the proposal to build a three or four-county TB sanatorium in Richland county, John W. Selby, county commissioner, told the backers of the plan that he is opposed to it.

The meeting, scheduled for 8 p. m. today in the municipal courtroom at the city building, was called by Jacque R. Wilkinson, former patient at the county sanatorium, who said he has the support of 30 other patients and former patients and "several hundred" representatives of the medical profession in the four counties.

In a letter to Wilkinson, Selby said:

"I am 100 per cent against your plan. You will find we (the couny commissioners) have provided sufficient ground and an adequate sewerage system and water enough to supply a 200-bed hospital," Selby wrote.

"Plans call for a 49-bed hospital, but 72 beds can be handled nicely. Our purpose is to get this institution started and functioning under the direction of elected officials As soon as this hospital goes beyond a 49-bed institution it passes into the hands of an appointed board.

"Thus, the people who furnish the money to accomplish our need lose control. The electors of Richland county have passed a bond issue for their county commissioners to build a TB hospital for Richland county, not a tri-county institution, which would again cause a delay.

"When we get this building erected and operated and an adjoining county wants to add another wing to our building, well and good, providing the taxpayers of Richland county approve. As I understand, a number of counties have tried the plan you have under consideration and all have failed to function."

Don't forget to USE those Christmas seals on all letters and packages—they reflect the true Christmas spirit.

There's talk of extending circulation of $2 bills—they'd be right handy in buying a dollar's worth of stuff at present prices.

One student of "human nature" notes that "this is the season when the guy who slammed the door all summer begins to leave it open."

Substitute For Strikes Must Be Found

WITH March 31 set as the deadline for the truce John L. Lewis has granted in the miners' strike, no time dare be lost in strengthening laws designed to prevent recurrence of such stoppages of coal output—although the Supreme Court decision expected in the meantime may serve to clear up some of the issues that are now clouded by conflicting opinions.

Equally important, however, is speedy revision of laws which seem to sanction strikes that result in a shutdown of utility services and transportation or distribution of commodities "essential to public health and safety."

Experience during the past year has demonstrated the excesses to which leaders of organized groups are willing to go in efforts to enforce their demands, and conditions have arisen which obviously cannot be tolerated if the welfare of the many is to take precedence over the arbitrary decisions of a relatively few.

There is appearance of agreement among leaders of both political parties that something in the way of restrictive legislation should be in readiness by the time the new congress opens in January, but no clear indication has yet been given of the extent to which restraints will be imposed.

It may be assumed that any proposals coming from President Truman will reflect the best thought of those whose views he is seeking, and that the Republicans will likewise canvass the situation thoroughly before announcing majority intentions.

It will be hoped that whatever course the final action takes it will reflect sound judgment rather than partisan expediency or appearance of effort to influence bloc votes.

Newspaper Reading 'Habits' Surveyed

EXTENT to which constant study is being made of the "reading habits" of you folks who are a part of the millions of Americans who have become accustomed to receiving a daily newspaper may be a surprise to some of you.

It is a fact, nevertheless, that there is statistical information which discloses approximately the percentage of News-Journal subscribers who will read this column—and other features appearing on this page—as well as the percentage that will give chief attention to other pages—news, sports, comics, society, pictures, and the like.

During the past seven years, 100 field studies of American newspapers with a combined circulation of 7,776,665 have been conducted by the Publication Research Service, of Chicago. Results have been interesting—and sometimes surprising.

It is revealed, for instance, that instead of being overlooked, the editorial page attracts the attention of a quite high percentage of men readers and a somewhat smaller percentage of women—whose greatest interest appears to be directed to local advertising, with pictures, news photos, women's features and social activities ranking next in feminine appeal.

An interesting phase of postwar studies is the growth of interest in newspaper advertising, especially among men, and it is noted that local store advertising attracts 73 per cent of the men and 94 per cent of the women readers.

Thorough reading of their newspaper by many people is evidenced by the volume of quick response to some of the relatively small classified ads, and to business-building effectiveness of the retail store advertising such as that which appears regularly in The News-Journal.

One point that is entirely clear is that wide variety of content is required in serving the special interests of all readers—and it is to this accomplishment that the modern daily newspaper devotes its best efforts day after day and year after year.

More About Why Some Men Are Bald

BALDNESS has been attributed to so many different causes that it is at least interesting to note that Dr. Herbert Rattener, associate professor at Northwestern university, (who is himself quite bald), has an idea that lack of hair indicates more than average masculinity, or "he-manism", as he puts it.

One school of thought, made up largely of men with little or no hair, has contended that intellectual superiority was evidenced by baldness, with nourishment withdrawn from hair cells in order to stimulate brain activity, but it is Dr. Rattener's opinion that functioning of the endocrine glands have much to do with it, and that, to escape baldness, a man should be very careful in the selection of ancestors—as this is something that is likely to "run in the family", because of a lot of "influences" that appear to affect other primates, as well as members of the so-called "human family."

It's all very intriguing, and suggests a field for deep study by anyone who has the leisure to pursue it.

Russians Would Gain By Travel

ENGLAND'S discerning and intellectual labor leader, Prof. Harold J. Laski, says that the ordinary Russian at home is a most friendly person who loves to talk and likes to hear about other people's experiences. But when he is in a foreign land he becomes aloof, is absurdly on his dignity and seems to lose his sense of humor.

This coincides with the impression visiting UN Soviet delegates have given Americans. It looks like a feeling of social inferiority on their part. There's one way to cure such an attitude—that is for more Russians to travel in more foreign lands. It would be an excellent thing if Stalin himself were well enough to make some visits abroad.

THE LAMPLIGHTER IS MAKING HIS ROUNDS

Drive To Abolish Rent Controls By Shifting Authority To States

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Next major lobbying drive in Washington will be against rent controls, only control measure which survived President Truman's sweeping OPA decontrol order.

The president has decided to eliminate OPA completely, and has on his desk an executive order transferring rent control to the department of commerce.

The real-estate lobbyists know they can't get even a Republican congress to repeal rent control. So they've decided on a new tactic.

The lobby is drawing up a bill which would transfer rent control from the federal government to the states. This will be advanced as a "state's rights" and "economy" measure. The result, however, will be the same.

Twelve states now have no rent control, and in other states most control laws are elastic. Some state legislatures also are likely to pass laws permitting the housing profiteers to make a real clean-up before sufficient new housing is built.

Fireproofing Christmas Trees.

Apropos of Christmas, don't forget about fireproofing your Christmas tree. A Yule tree needn't be a serious fire hazard. And if you are using candles instead of electricity, you can fireproof your tree by following these simple directions from department of agriculture chemists:

1. At the corner drugstore, buy a quantity of ammonium sulphate equal to one-fourth the weight of the tree. That is, if the tree weighs 12 pounds, you need three pounds of the chemical, which is cheap and easily available.

2. Put the chemical in a glass jar or some other container with a narrow mouth to lessen evaporation, and add one and a half pints of water for each pound of ammonium sulphate.

3. While the tree is still fresh, saw off a small part of the trunk at the bottom, preferably at an oblique angle or in a V shape. Then set the tree in the solution in a cool place, away from direct sunlight, and leave it there until the solution is absorbed.

The degree of fire resistance of your tree depends upon the amount of solution absorbed; so the more that's absorbed, the safer your tree. Also, the increased moisture content helps to keep the tree green and preserves it for a longer time.

These preventive measures may require a little time and trouble, but if you have small children in the house, they are worth taking.

Lame Ducks Play Indians.

Twice last week, President Truman was visited by congressmen who asked him to appoint friends on the new Indian Claims Commission. Senator Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming urged the appointment of Louis O'Marr, attorney general of Wyoming, while Representative Bill Stigler of Oklahoma brought along his candidate—Justice Earl Welch of the Oklahoma supreme court, who is part Chickasaw himself.

The president made no commitment beyond saying he intends to announce the make-up of the new commission before the month is over.

He did apologize to Stigler, however, for the delay in making the appointments.

"There has been such a heavy press of business here all fall that I just haven't been able to get to these appointments," he explained.

What Truman did not explain was that also he had been urged to wait to see whether any worthy Democrats, defeated in the election, might want the job. The names of lameduck Congressmen Will Robinson of Utah, an excellent man, and Jed Johnson of Oklahoma, who lost out on a chance to be a custom court judge, now have been suggested.

The commission is one which will require a topflight staff, since it will have to pass judgment on all Indian claims which have not gone into the courts.

There is absolutely no statutory limit on the age of the claims—which means that if an Indian tribe wants to claim that it has legal right to the entire territory of the state of Utah, the commission may have to hear the argument.

Gen. Pat Hurley, former secretary of war and ambassador to China, got rich when he was a lawyer prosecuting Indian claims from Oklahoma. That may be why the bill creating this new commission has a number of western lawyers rubbing their hands in expectation.

Junketing Lame-Ducks.

The west coast shipping strike was no boon to the nation as a whole, but it helped Hawaii escape a pilgrimage of lame-duck congressmen. The islanders had invited a delegation from the house territories committee to come to Hawaii in order to enlist their support for statehood.

The invitation was sent to Congressman Hugh Peterson of Georgia, who, though defeated for re-election, still is chairman of the territories committee until January. And when Peterson circulated the invitation for the all-expenses-paid trip, five lame-duck congressmen signed up. Two of them, John Gibson of Georgia and Jane Pratt of North Carolina, had known ever since last summer's primary that they would not be in the next congress, but apparently they wanted one last free junket.

Also ticketed for the trip were Reps. Will Robinson of Utah, Jim Geelan of Connecticut and James Delaney of New York, all Democrats defeated in last month's election. Whether they would have gone after their defeat is not certain—but only Robinson had definitely indicated that he would withdraw.

This put Hawaiian officials in a quandary. They didn't want to withdraw the invitation. But they were fearful that taxpayers would protest if thousands of dollars were spent on a vacation jaunt for five ex-congressmen.

That was why the west coast ship tie-up was a blessing. The boat on which the congressional party was scheduled to travel, canceled its November 22 sailing and Hawaiian Governor Stainback diplomatically suggested that the trip be postponed until next year.

Note—Last August this column revealed that Congressman Peterson of Georgia, chairman of the territories committee, went to Alaska on an "official mission," taking with him Mrs. Peterson, their son Hugh, jr., and their niece Sue Smith Peterson. Following this Peterson was defeated for renomination.

Assignment: America

—By KENNETH L. DIXON

Great Opportunity; Grave Responsibility.

WASHINGTON — It is seldom that a complex situation in this confused capital city can be boiled down to the point where the issues and goals involved become completely clear.

It is a pleasure to be able to report one such situation today to the house-hungry veterans across the land.

If, during 1947, more than a million new housing units are placed under construction at reasonable prices, you can thank several real estate, building, construction, loan and finance groups which are well represented here in Washington.

If not, then—other economic factors remaining roughly the same——it is on them that you can place the blame.

For nearly a year now, they have fought vigorously and well for the ousting of National Housing Expediter Wilson W. Wyatt and his veterans emergency housing program.

They have accused him of hampering the construction of new homes, rather than helping it. They have charged him with continuing the national housing crisis rather than relieving it. They have blamed his "complex regulations," construction priorities, rent controls and other restrictions for continued existence of the housing emergency.

Their fight has been successful. Even when they failed to oust Wyatt in the early stages of the battle, still they managed to halt passage of the Wagner-Ellender-Taft measure—or any similar bill—which Wyatt and his aides thought essential for easing the shortage.

Now their pressure has been great enough to force the resignation of Wyatt, and to eliminate many phases of his program.

Thus, they have asked for the ball—and gotten it.

Two of the leading organizations which have lobbied long and loudly for elimination of Wyatt's position and his veterans emergency housing program already have started moving down the field.

Lauding President Truman's acceptance of the Wyatt resignation, the National Association of Real Estate Boards is striking now to abolish rent controls. Said executive Vice-President Herbert U. Nelson of Chicago, "now is the time to get rid of rent control for good and all. If we do, there will be plenty of new homes built for veterans and others. . . ."

The National Association of Home Builders announced that, far from "scuttling the veterans' housing program," President Truman's action in relieving it "of many unnecessary controls should clear the road for faster building of veterans' homes."

Noting that several veterans' groups expressed alarm at Wyatt's resignation and the implied abandonment of his program, President Joseph Meyerhoff of Baltimore said that it "should result in building more houses for veterans in less time. The complex system of federal controls that developed under the Wyatt program actually hampered completion of homes instead of helping it. Veterans should feel relieved, not alarmed. . . ."

Through their press relations men here in Washington, these and other building, real estate and finance groups stressed that more vital home production can be expected with the abandonment of regulations—for which they have long fought.

Naturally, it goes without saying that those who supported Wyatt and his program feel that all the foregoing criticisms have been falsely, or at least mistakenly, stated, and that the program has been a success.

Those people, however, have been defeated by the two organizations mentioned above and various associated groups.

Therefore, on those who successfully fought Wyatt and his program now falls full responsibility for easing the housing shortage. The credit or the blame must go to them.

It is simultaneously a grave responsibility and a great opportunity to prove the advertised effectiveness of free, unhampered enterprise.

Timely Editorial

A Novel Sentence.

A Youngstown common pleas jurist, Judge Erskine Maiden, Jr., has imposed a sentence on a convicted offender in his court which is not only novel, but common sense and logical.

A mill worker, driving while intoxicated, crashed into another car killing the driver. Accepting responsibility in a clear-cut case of involuntary manslaughter, he pleaded guilty. The judge gave him his choice of going to the penitentiary for an indeterminate term or of retaining his liberty as long as he complies with financial restitution terms to which he agreed. These include payment, within five years, of $1000 to the widow of his victim for hospital, medical and funeral expenses and monthly payments of $30 for each of the two orphaned children—now aged 3 and 9—until they are 16.

This arrangement recognizes that nobody would be helped by imprisoning the man, but that the financial terms he must fulfill will serve both to aid the family of the man he killed and to serve as a very real penalty for admitted wrongdoing.—Columbus Dispatch.

Some Officials Are Also "Tailor-Made."

WASHINGTON—Just about 30 years ago a play ran in New York called "The Tailer-made Man." It was in 1917 that I saw it.

The memory of it comes back with that clarity of youthful impressions, for it was the fine stuff of dreams, as does the memory of that whole joyous splurge of several days in the New York theater as a young man, a college freshman stopping off on the way back home to Georgia after a month in an ROTC training camp at Plattsburg.

The dim and misty magic of it all comes back, too, with the aura that goes with a rear seat in the balcony — the rustling thrill through the house before the curtain rose; and a young man, alone, vowing some day that he would write a play, as so many have done.

He choked up until the tears came as he heard what could be done with words, mere words—a frustrated ambition, of course, common to so many who end up writing pieces like this, day after day.

But back to the play. Grant Mitchell was in the leading role, that of a tailor. When the curtain rose he was sitting on his table, tailor fashion, at his trade, talking to a friend. He was making a dress suit for someone.

The conversation turned to clothes and what they can do for a fellow and then to a swanky party, an event of the season. The tailor bet that he could deck himself out in a dress suit and break right into it.

In the second act he walked majestically into the party and gave his name to the butler. I can still remember the name—"John Paul Barth." He was announced with the proper decorum and he strolled about making himself completely at home. Everybody thought surely they knew him, or should know him, and he was accepted, because he was properly dressed and carried himself with an air.

Which is all preliminary to the observation that we occasionally have our tailor-made men in politics, figuratively speaking. They know the manner, they walk in confidently, and the first thing you know there they are, fixtures.

There is one now in the inner White House circle of advisers. As a matter of fact he is now the top man in an advisory role to President Truman. I speak of Clark Clifford, who bears the title of special counsel to the president.

He came here in a naval uniform—and not on a bet. He was brought in by the then presidential naval aide, Commodore James K. Vardaman, St. Louis businessman, as an assistant. (Can a naval aide's duties be so onerous?) When Mr. Vardaman was lifted from this role and put on the federal reserve board—and not without some protest in the senate—Mr. Clifford was promoted to captain and made naval aide. President Truman had met him only once before he came to Washington.

Presently Captain Clifford got out of his uniform and became a White House adviser to the president. He had entered the navy in 1944 and been assigned to the contract section of the Pacific Coast.

He is a lawyer and recognized at the top of his profession in St. Louis, his home. He is most capable, personable, gets along well with people, and has that rare capacity for keeping clear of feuds.

Now he sits supreme, above Secretary of Treasury John W. Snyder; George Allen of the RFC and John Steelman, reconversion and stabilization director.

Oh yes—the play. When it ended the tailor was back squatting on his table, which is what makes philosophers of those who sit in the gallery here year after year and watch the passing show—perhaps a little to smug for their own good.

Marquis Childs

Bog-Down of Housing Program Foreseen.

WASHINGTON — Nothing that has happened since V-J day caused so much pulling and hauling within the Truman administration as the dismissal of Wilson Wyatt as housing expediter. This was the clearest test yet whether big business would kill all controls.

George Allen, head of the RFC and the official funny man of the administration, won the battle and with it the war. His big business friends, such as Tom Girdler and Victor Emanuel, owe him a great deal.

But Wyatt was not defeated without a fight. Only reluctantly did President Truman yield to the pressure of Allen and others around him to reject Wyatt's program and thereby force his resignation.

As one of Wyatt's associates put it during the battle:

"You've got only one friend in the White House, and that's the president. But it doesn't look as though that would be enough."

Wyatt did an extraordinary job against great odds in getting 700,000 veterans' homes started. He fought right up to the end for the measures he considered essential to keep the program rolling. In a memorandum he sent to the White House on November 20, he put in blunt language what he saw as the choice.

The memorandum makes it clear that the dispute over 100 per cent RFC loans for rental housing developments was only one item in the controversy.

Wyatt told the president that channelling of materials, continuation of priorities and premium payments, a check of real estate speculation and other emergency steps were necessary if the veterans' program was not to bog down.

"The de-control of prices and the abandonment of wage controls make it doubly necessary to utilize fully and effectively the remaining controls and other available tools to speed and aid residential construction," Wyatt told the president.

Speaking of the need for mass-produced houses such as he proposed to underwrite in the Lustron plant in Chicago, the housing expediter wrote:

"Emergency RFC loans—100 per cent if necessary—must be made to launch this new industry. During the war we did not hesitate to risk dollars to protect our fighting men from the enemy. We must not hesitate to risk dollars now to protect these same men from the bitter frustration of failure to find a home and from the demoralization of family life which follows."

In the wind-up of his Nov. 20 memorandum, Wyatt got off some plain speaking:

"Every part of the program is mutually supporting. Every part is essential.

"It will require your leadership to see that the people of this country are kept aware of the urgency of the veterans' need for homes, to see that the problem is met by a national unity of purpose and action, to see that every necessary branch of the federal government puts its full energies and resources into the emergency housing program.

"We cannot face our veterans with a half-hearted housing program."

The report shows through the non-essentials of the housing controversy to make clear what the issue is. Nothing like the hoped-for number of dwellings will be constructed during the coming year.

There will be increasing delays in construction already in progress. That is part of the cost of the decision taken by the White House.

In home construction, as in so many other lines the smart money is now waiting for a drop in prices. That may be good business. But it is not meeting the obligation to the men who fought and won the war.

Farmer's Diary: "Some Compliations."

WRITING a column is my favorite indoor sport, but just occasionally it gets quite complicated . . . time out right here to referee a fight between my oldest and my youngest sons.

The bigger boy, having twice the age, behaved quite creditably by holding the young attacker at arm's length. The younger had a bulldog grip, though, and I couldn't help enjoying the way he held on . . . never mind, son, wait a few more years. Go on to bed! . . . where was I?

The weather has been wonderful, hasn't it? I hear that down in New Orleans, they've just had a week of celebration. The way I know is that the National Federation of Shipping sent me a 13-page letter. I read it through. It said we all,—farmers and hinterland dwellers—need an active Merchant Marine service, because we need to unload our surpluses where they are needed, and because our ships can carry our goodwill around the world.

It said the way to have lots of friends is to get better acquainted, and the Merchant Marine boys are willing to carry cargo both ways. Made me feel like going right off and joining the fleet . . . to fetch you home a load of sugar and bananas. Remember how we used to buy them seven pounds for a quarter?

Skipper, the black spaniel, has come back. He disappeared the first day of hunting season, and the small boys hunted him in vain. Finally they made up a sad story that he ran to intercept some hunters through the grass, and was shot very dead or had dragged himself painfully away into some woodchuck hole where his whining could not be misinterpreted . . . all right, Skipper—this way out! (He scratches at the door until you get up and open it.)

Now, where was I?

My wife sent off for a new set of barber tools. They work right well, but I wish I had more hair. Oh sure, she does all the haircutting—head work of any kind! Claims it's worth five dollars a round to keep her menfolk clipped—but shall have to charge it!

There—the dog wants in again. He'll put his nose against the pane and scratch. Persistence is a trait he's piled up, too. He must have had a nice vacation on that three-day jaunt. Looks eager and bright-eyed, only a little thinner. Winter vacations are wonderful, they say . . . here's that magazine, "HOLIDAY" again that depends on tantalization to keep its reading public . . . time out, while I look at the pictures.

Where has the evening gone? Tomorrow I really must write a farm column!

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, December 12.

A SUDDEN and probably spectacular event or circumstance may have power to hold up sound progress born of industry, shrewd and practical ideas and plans, the endurance and patience of the past few days, or more. This might be due to the strange or unexpected attitude of some person of erratic or quixotic temperament, or some other unaccountable visitation. Credit, ambitions, business and personal life may be complicated, and the best advice is to meet dire situations with sagacity, determination and perseverance, tenaciously holding on to whatever ground promises security and long-range benefits.

Those whose birthday it is may be suddenly confronted by a situation of peculiar or spectacular origin, which threatens to radically upset or postpone many benefits and resources already well on the road to established endurance and long-term security. An error of judgment or possibly the queer advice of an erratic or emotional person may precipitate this. The soundest advice is to hold firmly to all basic foundations and continue to work with shrewd grasp of menacing factors, and with determination, fortitude and as well certain subtle strategies, since there are hidden sources propitious and encouraging.

A child born on this day will need steadfast, diligent and far-seeing fortitude to avert loss from sudden buffets or strange reversals in life.

Mansfielders Leave Bonds, Frogs, and Teeth in Clothing

"We find anything from collar buttons to false teeth and from dead frogs to $10,000 in war bonds!"

That sums up the odd and unusual things found in garments sent to Mansfield dry cleaning establishments.

Between these four extremes is an odd assortment of almost anything you can name, according to Robert Lemley, World War II veteran who operates a cleaning establishment.

"We've found gold inlays as well as sets of teeth," Lemley recalled. "And its nothing rare to find such things as lip sticks, pens, pencils, compacts, handkerchiefs and bank books. In fact, you name it and we'll probably have found it at one time or another."

THE DEAD FROG WAS found in the pocket of a hunting coat sent to West's, according to Roland Frasher, manager.

"The war bonds," Frasher said, "we found in the pocket of a suit coat. That was one thing we returned to the owner in a hurry. And the girls who discovered them were each given $10 reward."

These experiences are duplicated at Swan's. The most unexpected thing ever found there, according to Mrs Swan, was a pair of baby's knitted training panties.

GRANDMA'S SPECTACLES are frequently found at Sowash's. "And sometimes, Gordon Sowash recalled, "we find notes that might not mean anything to the casual observer, but to the persons who wrote them, they mean a good deal. We go over garments thoroughly, mostly because we can't take a chance on leaving matches in the pockets."

Steve Bogner said that finding men's shorts still inside trousers is not unusual, and rubber bands, paper clips and small items like that are found so often that clerks take it for granted that a certain amount of these things will be found in every new batch of soiled clothes.

At the George Burgess dry cleaning shop, lost articles run more to small items like bolts and nuts, small change, neckties, and jewelry.

"ONCE IN A WHILE WE FIND large sums of money' Burgess recalled, "but not often Frequently, however, we find diamond rings."

That flair for leaving expensive rings in the pockets of aprons and coats seems to be general with women customers, shop managers said

And of course there's always letters and bank books. And often three of four bills, of large denomination, sewed into the lining of trousers or a coat

Most persons who leave things in their garments are just plain absent-minded, cleaners said. One Mansfielder sent a garment to Fusco's with a $100 bill in the pocket—and didn't even miss it.

MOST OF THE ARTICLES found in soiled garments are returned to the owners. Sometimes, however, there are garments and articles never called for.

Articles are placed in a box to be claimed. After a certain period, however, garments are disposed of. Since the war, many of these unclaimed clothes find their way to some far-away post in Europe or Asia, where clothing, regardless of how inexpensive it may be, is gratefully received.

"We've sent so much overseas or sold it for dry cleaning costs to Mansfield groups who want to send it for foreign relief that we have few unclaimed garments on hand any more," John Fusco said.

"Most unclaimed clothing usually isn't worth much anyway, but to someone overseas who is cold and in need of clothes, even a worn suit will seem a wonderful garment," Fusco said.

PILES ARE NEVER MILD

DANGER IN NEGLECT

No one should ever think of piles (hemorrhoids as a "mild" disorder.

Although they may seem a "mild" ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formations without tendency to heal themselves, instead, they are likely, if neglected, to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting predisposing to or aggravating other ailments, such as: indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in the back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its run-down tired feeling and general nervous irritability.

Removal of piles is the only permanent relief — written guarantee. My method produces little or no discomfort, does not require the use of knife or drugs, and seldom is the patient required to lose any time from work or other duties.

Pegler — Fair Enough

NEW YORK—For a real, popular understanding of the fight to rescue the American government from the boss unioneers, the fact must be sounded again and again, as the Hyde Park hand used to say, and sounded above the clamor of their mechanized propaganda, that the men who claim this power over the nation are old, old, old. They are old and reactionary. They haven't had a new idea in fifteen years and the last idea they did have and the one they cling to today is that they are not mere princes of privilege, to employ another of the spook's corn-tassel posies, but kings, emperors, of divine right and wisdom. Often, they are rogues and liars to one another in their own, arcanal repartee, however, as when old Philip Murray, the president of the CIO, after comparing his own paltry megrims to the passion of Jesus Christ, howled to the 1942 convention of the CIO that John L. Lewis "was a national prevaricator, universally recognized by the workers and the citizens of our country."

Lewis had a "diabolical mind," Murray whined in self-pity, after charging that an agent of Lewis had ordered his followers "to keep after this fellow Murray until you kill him."

"Those are the things that are going on," he wailed. "Organized despotisms, the devices used by Hitler are being resorted to in the 20 puppet districts of the United Mine workers over which John L. Lewis has complete domination."

* * *

YET, WHEN LEWIS called the miners out and popular government made a desperate stand against the Hitlerian despot, Murray and his CIO were found on the side of Lewis and against the Republic. And this, I think, would be an occasion to notice that Judge Goldsborough, in passing sentence on the "little man" with the "diabolical mind," did not prattle of democracy but properly called this nation a republic and said it must prevail.

They are old.

Lewis is 67. Alex Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, who laid a similar, bony old clutch on the nation's throat last spring, is 74 and has been riding the cushions on the gravy train as a union politician for the last 46 years, almost half a century.

William Hutcheson, of the carpenters, is 73. Dan Tobin, of the teamsters, 72. Lewis is 67 and William Green is 74.

The secret of it all has been vanity and selfishness. When these men speak of the toilers they are thinking of their own privileges, their brief but swollen importance and their own inevitable collapse the moment the government, by law, affirms its duty to govern them as well as all other elements of the United States. On their way to power they bumbled the phrase-book bromide that a "static" civilization was "sterile." A system that didn't go forward must go backward and "change" was mankind's only hope of progress. Having achieved their power, they have resisted all change, since 1934, bellowing at all who proposed the slightest impairment of their privileges, the most reactionary and despotic group in the entire history of the nation. Fearful, suspicious, backward, selfish and old, old, old.

Othman — On Anything

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Our government won't sell itself some engines for its own railroad. It won't even talk to itself about the deal. I fear it's sore at itself.

The government obviously has a split personality and should consult a psychiatrist. If it kindly will put a cold towel on its brow and quit muttering, I'll try to explain:

The general manager of the Alaska railroad was testifying before congress a while back about the streak of rust the interior department is pleased to call a railway. If it doesn't get some new locomotives soon the government won't have any railroad, except on a map.

The man said he knew where he could find some engines, all right; hefty new diesels, still packed in grease.

"Where?" asked Rep. John J. Rooney.

"On the docks over in Europe," said the government's railroader. "Surplus property."

"Well, why don't you take 'em?" Rep. Rooney asked.

"The Office of Foreign Liquidation won't do business with us," the federal railway chief moaned. Time passed. Service on the Alaska railroad grew no better. And here was a special house committee looking into disposal of surplus property, including locomotives, abroad.

On the carpet were Maj. Gen. Donald H. Connolly, the FLC boss, and his attorney, Chester P. Lane.

"Now about these locomotives the Alaska railroad wanted," began Rep. Rooney.

THE GENERAL and his lawyer indicated that if they'd only known the government's other hand wanted locomotives, they'd have been glad to oblige.

"Of course," said Lane, "we couldn't deliver these locomotives to Alaska because we are not geared for that. We do not have the funds. And it may be that the Alaska railroad had no funds to pay the freight, either."

Rep. Rooney scratched his ear. He said the problem was that the Alaska railroad only heard rumors that the foreign liquidation commission had some surplus engines. It couldn't nail down the truth officially.

"Don't you let other branches of the government know what you've got for sale?" the congressman demanded.

The general said he couldn't do that. He'd have to have a central inventory of his billions of dollars worth of stuff scattered around the world, he said, and that would take a building bigger than the capitol.

"So how many surplus diesel engines do you have now?" Rep. Rooney asked.

The engine salesmen weren't exactly sure. Neither did they know for certain where their locomotives, if any, were located at the moment, though they believed they could find out. Their best guess was that the engines mostly had been sold to railroads in other lands.

Rep. Roger Slaughter of Mo., the chairman, said he wished they'd seek the facts. All is not yet lost. Hope is slim, but the government may still buy some locomotives from the government if the government discovers any locomotives it can sell the government.

OPENS BIDS ON LAND CLEARING, PORT PROJECT

City Studies Offers on Three Jobs Involving Water Supply, Weather Station, Streets.

Lowest bid for the Clear Fork reservoir land clearing job was $73,800, submitted by John Richardson and M. P. Teter, partners, of Lexington, Service-Safety Director William W. Enlow said yesterday.

Harry F. Smith, of Lexington, consulting engineer for the lake project, originally estimated that the clearing job should cost about $75,000.

Other bids included those of the Testa Excavating company of Cleveland, $75,650; Hanagan Brothers corporation, of Urbana, $82,500 and Cochran and Dalrymple, of Mt. Vernon, $88,944.

Enlow said that before any of the four bids can be accepted they must be "studied carefully" and money to cover the cost must be appropriated by city council.

Also received yesterday were bids for a contract to construct a communications-weather building at the airport and for a Fourth avenue paving job.

Bidding on the airport job were Edward M. Schuler, $2,369, and Ivan F. Bauer, $3,139, both of Mansfield.

Bids for the grading job include those of George B. Herring and Son, $3,585; Roger J. Au, $4,005, and R. O. Darling, $4,980.

Overcomes Handicap of Paralysis To Become Leader In Community

By NITA BRANSON

Most 4-H club workers get incentive for their continued activities through prizes and community praise. But the 20 members who belong to the Future Homemakers club supervised by Mrs. Harold Tingley have an added inspiration to do their best. It's the daily life of their leader!

She was stricken with paralysis when she was eight years old had has been paralyzed in one hip and leg ever since. Yet she has reared three children, done all her own housework and has still found time to undertake outside activities, such as church and 4-H club work.

She shuns publicity and didn't want to tell the story of her life.

"I'd much rather you'd talk about what my 4-H club girls have done," she said shyly.

But the two, club and leader, have been so inseparable for the past five years, that to speak of one naturally leads to talking of the other.

Since Mrs. Tingley has been leader of this group, members have completed 200 homemaking projects. During the war, they gave $250 to the Red Cross, $50 worth of books and records to Crile hospital in Cleveland and $50 to Father Flanagan at Boys' Town. They expect to repeat the Boys' Town gift this year.

Try Various Projects.

"Most of the money has been earned through sewing, lunches at farm sales, collecting sales tax stamps and managing lunches at the Richland county junior fair," Mrs. Tingley said.

She continued, "And that is not all we have done by any means. Members have helped in every community emergency that has occurred in our particular neighborhood between Ashland and Olivesburg roads. If there is a fire in the neighborhood, club members get busy."

Of course Mrs. Tingley doesn't emphasize the fact that when there is an emergency, she goes to the telephone and calls for help. For instance, several years ago a family in that neighborhood was "burned out." Their home was destroyed with everything they had, including clothing. When Mrs. Tingley heard of the disaster, she began calling neighbors.

MRS. HAROLD TINGLEY

It wasn't long until she had some place for the family to stay; food and clothing were shortly obtained and everything that 20 homemakers could do, at the instigation of their leader, to tide a stricken family over the first rough spots, was done as quickly as possible. Even the Community Fund was asked for help. The agency responded with gifts of clothing for one member of the family which totaled about $75.

Members of this Homemakers' group won first prize with their demonstration at the Junior fair this year, a prize which entitled them to attend the State fair at Columbus.

In spite of helping her husband in a "hot dog" stand which he recently purchased, Mrs. Tingley has no intention of curtailing either her home or her 4-H club activities.

Home work, at least, she expects to be increased when the fruit trees and berries her husband has planted on their 40-acre farm begin to "bear." While she won't do any of the actual orchard work, canning will probably be a bigger task for the Tingley family. As it is, Mrs. Tingley yearly has between 500 and 600 cans of fruit and vegetables in her fruit cellars.

But Mrs. Tingley hasn't a qualm about work. She never has had, she says, so why start now?

LEGION POST MAKES QUOTA

MT. GILEAD—The Mt. Gilead American Legion post has reached the membership quota of 190 members, Romie Winget, membership committee chairman, announced today.

Officials to Draft Plans For New Airport Highway

Plans for providing a new first class highway around Mansfield's municipal airport to replace the abandoned State Route 13 will be discussed by State Highway Director Perry T. Ford and city and county officials at the courthouse tomorrow at 1:30 p. m.

County Engineer Walter E. Rusk said Ford had asked him to arrange for the meeting.

In addition to the city and county officials, regional and division officers of the state highway department and representatives of the Richland County Auto club, the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce and others concerned with the project have been invited.

Although no official action is expected to result from the meeting, Rusk's surveys for two possible routes for the proposed new highway are to be considered.

The meeting may develop the first positive action on the problem since Route 13 was vacated by the state in 1944, when construction on the airport began.

Detour Used Now.

Since then the county has built and maintained an earth-surface detour road around the western side of the airfield.

TEACHER TO SPEAK

BUCYRUS—Tiro school will be the scene of the semi-annual meeting of the Crawford County Honor society next Monday when John E. Gee, professor of education at Bowling Green university, and six students from the college will conduct panel discussions on the subject of "Teaching as a Profession."

Previous statements of state highway department officials indicate that the state will construct a new highway if the county makes the surveys and provides land for right-of-way. The surveys have been completed by the county engineer's department for several weeks. Land will not be obtained until one of the two possible routes—to the east or to the west of the part—are chosen.
